European Research Council: a quick guide for applicants

The European Research Council provides attractive, long-term grants to pursue ground-breaking, high-risk/high-gain research in any field. Excellence is the sole criterion for selection; there are neither thematic priorities, nor geographical quotas for funding. The ERC offers three main individual grant schemes (Starting, Consolidator and Advanced) targeting researches at different stages of their career.

In this seminar, information will be provided on these main grants and, upon request, on the collaborative Synergy call. A step-by-step guideline will be outlined, together with advice and useful tips for prospective applicants.
